VOL. 10, NO. 230 MONESSEN, PA., MONDAY, MARCH 4, 1912 SIX CENTS THE WEEK

IMPORTANT MOVEMENTS OF THE MILLS

The recent announcements that the Pittsburgh Steel Co., were getting ready to erect new open hearth and blast furnaces here has travelled far and wide, and Monessen is beginning to feel the effects, judging from the large number of new faces that are appearing on the streets. Not only are new foremen and the more skilled construction men making their appearance but also the laboring class are beginning to drift in. Some come walking and some by the "side door" pullman method.

From the police station comes the report that on an average of almost 20 sleepers apply for lodging every evening and say that they have come in to look for work, hearing that there are to be some exensive improvements to be made here. It would be better perhaps if a good many of these men never had heard of this place but often times there are good substantial citizens developed from them. This is true especially when the men are able to secure steady work at some trade.

Since the panic of several years ago, trade conditions have not quite resumed their normal stage and there are still men roaming the country over in search of work, some having families at perhaps some distant place and would only be too glad to bring them here if opportunity offered. There is no doubt that this summer will be one of the most active seasons in the industrial line that it has been our lot to experience.

Five mills of the Tin Plate plant shut down this morning for repairs. They are numbers, 17 to 21 inclusive. Approximately 125 men will be laid off for a period of from three to five weeks until the repairs are completed. The Tin Mill has been running fairly steady all winter and there has been a good demand for the products and this shut down carries with it no special significance.

Man Found Dead in Bed

Albert Jacobe, a German and a bachelor, aged 62 years, was found dead in his bed Friday morning at the home of Lewis Perring at Baird, where he had visited over night, his home being near Monongahela. He has no relatives in this country.

MAN MEETS DEATH UNDER CAR WHEELS

About 10 o'clock Saturday morning, Nelson C. Huggins, aged about 40 years, was struck by a train in front of the passenger station at Belle Vernon and almost instanly killed, living only two minutes after being struck. He was crossing the tracks to get his dinner pail which he had left on the opposite side and stepped in front of an oncoming train which was at that time several minutes late; the engineer was unable to put on his breaks in time to avert the accident. The man was carried into the frieght house where he succumbed. His skull was badly crushed and his features are hardly recognizable. Huggins was employed as a carpenter by the railroad company and it is said that at one time he was employed here. He is survived by his wife who lives in East Liverpool, O.

Child Drowned in Cistern

AN IMMENSE AUDIENCE WITNESSED QUEEN ESTHER GIVEN BY JEWISH PEOPLE

The Star theatre Sunday afternoon was filled to its utmost capacity, the occasion being the production of "Queen Esther," the great historical depictment of the trials and tribulations of the Hebrew people during the early days.

This play was given under the auspices of the Hebrew church and the young people of the Sunday School played the various rolls.

The production of "Queen Esther" is associated with the Jewish feast of Purim which began Sunday, and great preparation had been made by the people of the church and especial pains had been taken in the training of the ones who took part.

Every one did well in their respective rolls and the costuming was fine and strictly in keeping with the customs and usages of the Jewish people at that time. The acting was most creditable and the singing was highly appreciated.

The audience was made up of the Jewish and American people, not only of Monessen, but many were here from all the neighboring towns: Charleroi, Monongahela, McKeesport, Belle Vernon, Brownsville and Donora.

This is one of the most beautiful productions of biblical history. The origin of the Feast of Purim is described in the book of Esther and its celebration is in commemoration of the entire Jewish population of the great Asiatic empire, over which Ahasuerus was the ruler. This deliverance was brought about by the intercession and pleading of Esther, a most beautiful Jewish woman who had become queen through marriage to the king. The story is that Mordecai, a Jew, had incurred the enmity of Haman, the favorite vizier, who planned a slaughter of all the Jews through revenge. Mordecai enlisted the aid of Queen Esther, his cousin and ward, who at the risk of her own life, interceded with the king for her people. The Jews were saved and Haman, their enemy, was hung along with his sons, on the scaffold which had been intended to execute Mordecai.

The word Purim means "lots," as Haman is said to have cast lots to set a day for the awful massacre. Purim is a home festival mainly, and is usually observed by masking, dancing, games and plays, and Monessen people decided to celebrate it with the production of "Queen Esther." The earliest histrionic efforts of the Jewish people were directed toward plays descriptive of the events discribed in the book of Esther. The book of Esther is usually read in the synagogue on this day.

Do you use Hydrogen Peroxide?

The American market is flooded with different makes of Hydrogen Peroxide, sold at all sorts of prices The Parke, Davis & Co. brand has been proved to be 30 per cent stronger than others on the market today. At the end of nine months it loses in strength only .06 per cent. The others lose from 1 to 64 40 per cent It certainly does not benefit a man who purchases Peroxide at a low price, for he has little more than ordinary water in the bottle after the lapse of three or four months. We have on our shelves some cheap stuff, and then we have the best—Parke, Davis & Co.'s.

WORK PROGRESSING ON NEW RAILROAD

The Pittsburgh & Lake Erie, familarly known by the sobriquet of "The Little Giant," a valuabe subsidiary or feeder of the New York Central Railroad, with all its activity and business along the Monongahela Valley is still reaching out and casting ahead, looking toward the corralling of even more business and it will not be many years, judging from present activities until she will need more trackage in order to get into Pittsburgh with the immense volume of tonnage which will come her way before many months.

Work on a 45 mile extension of what is known as the Monongahela Railroad is being pushed along as rapidly as is practicable. This piece of trackage which will extend from Martin in Fayette county to the Pennsylvania and West Virgina line near Point Marion will open up one of the richest and most valuable coal fields in this part of the country. It will connect at its terminus with the Buckhannon & Northern, and it is expected to be completed by June.

It will be remembered that in order to tap the now famous Fayette county coal field about seven years ago, the Monongahela railraod was built by the Lake Erie and Penna. R. R., who pooled issues at Redstone Junction, about one mile below Brownsville and in anticipation of the increased freight traffic to come from this new field, an immense amount of money—approximately $1,000,000—has been expended during the months just past, at and about the Redstone Junction near Brownsville, which is the traffic distributing point for the two roads.

Naturally the share of trade that will come to the Lake Erie will greatly add to the already immense tonnage being hauled through Monessen over its tracks, in order to reach the markets of the world East, West North and South.

Tim Welsh and Sister Here

Tim Welsh accompaned by his sister were here from Scotdale this morning, and made a pleasant call a the Independant office. Tim at one time held the position of foreman in this office and he is always a welcome visitor. He now holds a position in Pittsburgh where he is also making good.

DEEP INTEREST STILL IN REVIVAL WORK

The revival spirit is still abroad in Monessen, and it would be useless to say that there is not much to be done yet in the way of reclamation of souls. This is a big field and with all that has already been done among the churches here this winter, the work goes on, and it is to be hoped that much may yet be done tending toward the purifying and betterment of our moral surroundings.

Last night the meeting at the Methodist church was largely attended and one of the best services of the series was held. The music was of a high order, and the discourse by the pastor, Rev. Davies was most able and helpful. At the morning service there were twelve accessions to the church, and last night seven were at the altar for prayers. The meetings will be continued all this week.

At the Presbyerian church last evening the services was something exceptional. The meeting was opened by a praise service which was a feature exceeding in interest and intenseness anything ever witnessed in Monessen. The special music by the choir was most attractive and pleasing. A most powerful and convincing sermon was preached by Rev. J. H. Rodgers, of St. Cloud, Florida, who will remain here during the week. Tonight will begin the regular revival services, conducted by Evangelists M. B. Houck and Pete Porter, ably assisted by the pastor, Rev. H. O. MacDonald, and Rev. Rodgers of Florida. These meetings will be full of interest and life, and all are invited.

The revival services at St. Pauls Lutheran church were closed Friday evening, and much good was accomplished during the series, through the efforts of Rev. Eveler, the pastor and the earnest assistance of his membership.

At the Christian church yesterday twelve were taken into membership of the church, five of whom were immersed at the evening service.

Charles Gould of Pittsburgh was a Sunday visitor with Mr. and Mrs Lorrin Culler.

The disposal of house garbage is a troublesome question in all towns the size of Monessen and while we have a system at present which seems fairly good insofar as it removes the decaying and offall matter from our immediate presence and even beyond the confines of the town, but even at that the absolute correctness of the present plan is very much in question, as about any town where the old fashioned "garbage dump" is resorted to—a large field or abandoned hollow—there is always a community of people living near therby who are greatly inconvenienced and annoyed by the foul and unhealthy ordors arising therefrom. The government has rightly issued prohibitory commands against using flowing streams for the disposal of garbage or refuse, hence we must soon come to the "disposal plant" and look on it in the same cold, practical, matter-of-fact way that we do now upon the water company and the gas company—cold dollars and cents. True, the well-meaning house wife does some times dispose of her scraps at mealtime, providing she has a coal stove—by burning, and where it is done in small quantities it is not objectionable, but the most noticeable objection arises from the lower foreign element, who from a natural born un-American stinginess burn in their kitchen stoves great batches of all sorts of most detestable garbage refuse and the smoke arising therefrom becomes so offensive to the people of the neighborhood, that within only a few weeks it has been necessary to report to the borough officials. Monessen is a gas town practically; that is, gas is used among our American people for cooking purposes instead of coal, hence the coal stove cannot be resorted to as an incinerary, and where it is it should only be used for disposal of egg shells and the like, and while it might reduce the garbage man's bill, it is not a safe example to set before our alien people who need to be educated along modern, and more particularly sanitary lines as much as is possible. The talk of an incinerary or disposal plant for Monessen should be brought up to the people in a thoroughly business like manner without further quibbling, and the sooner the better. It does not augur good to any town with the status of Monessen to have the world know that we have our house garbage hauled out onto an open field there to lie and decompose, the death dealing odors to be wafted through the air to the detriment, annoyance and health risk of those living nearby.

Root and Herb Remedies

stand the test of time because they possess merit and though many years have passed since our American grandmothers commenced to make their annual collections of roots, herbs and barks., from which to prepare medicine to relieve different ailments, science has failed to produce other remedies so dependable.

Many of these old recipes which our ancestors found so reliable have developed into proprietary medicines of world-wide reputation, such as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the most successful remedy for woman's ills the world has ever known, and tons of roots and herbs are used annually in making it.

AVOID HARSH DRUGS

Many Cathartics Tend to Cause Injury to the Bowels

If you are subject to constipation, you should a void strong drugs and cathartics. They only give temporary relief and their reaction is harmful and sometimes more annoying than constipation. They in no way effect a cure and their tendency is to weaken the already weak organs with which they come in contact.

We honestly believe that we have the best constipation treatment ever devised. Our faith in it is so strong that we sell it on the positive guarantee that it shall not cost the user a cent if it does not give entire satisfaction and completely remedy constipation. This prepartion is called Rexall Orderlies. These are prompt, soothing, and most effective in action. They are made of a recent chemical discovery. Their principal ingredient is odorless, tasteless, and colorless. Combined with other well-known ingredients, long established for their usefulness in the treatment of constipation, it forms a tablet which is eaten just like candy. They may be taken at any time, either day or night, without fear of their causing any inconvenience whatever. They do not gripe, purge, nor cause nausea. They act without causing any pain or excessive looseness of the bowels. They are ideal for children, weak, delicate persons, and aged people, as well as for the most hearty person.

They come in three size packages. 12 tablets. 10 cents; 36 tablets, 25 cents; 80 tablets., 50 cents. Remember, you can obtain them only at our store—The Rexall Store. Craig's Drug Store.

Facts And Fiction

Experiences of Monessen Citizens Are Easily Proven to be Facts

The most superficial investigation will prove that the following statement from a resident of Monessen is true. Read it and compare evidence from Monessen people with testimony of strangers living so far away you cannot investigate the facts of the case. Many more citizens of Monessen will endorse Doan'o Kidney Pills.

Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor, 452 McKee avenue, Monessen, Pa., says: "I think that the change of drinking water when I moved here was the cause of my kidney trouble. The kidney secretions became irregular in passage and caused me annoyance. I was subject to dizzy spells, could not sleep well and was very nervous. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I got a box from the Hirsch Drug Co. and commenced their use. They have greatly helped me and have lived up to all the claims made for them."

"How long will he be in town now?"

"Arthur is away at present and doesn't expect to return for a week."

"Are you sure?"

"What do you infer, Marcia?"

"Only that I thought I saw him at the theater last night."

"Impossible. I had a letter yesterday."

"Maybe he returned since."

"Not without my knowledge."

"Well, the girl he was with—"

"Don't be idiotic," interrupted Lucille indignantly, "Arthur isn't taking other girls out."

"Lucille, I could swear on my bull dog's life that it was Arthur."

"You're too persistent. Didn't I mention Arthur was away?"

"What are you girls arguing about?" broke in Janet.

"About Lucille's future husband," commenced Marcia.

"Oh, I saw Arthur down town this morning, he deliberately walked by without even bowing."

"It wasn't Arthur," contradicted Lucille, vehemently. "I'm going home to write to him now."

"Poor Lucille," said Marcia. "Suppose Arthur was deceiving her. It's a great risk to marry a traveling man. I felt duty bound to tell her."

"People rarely thank you for telling them unpleasant truths."

"Why, she was as cross as two stick, and never even said goodby."

Upon reaching home Lucille found a 12-page letter from Arthur in which he wrote. "Don't know my next destination, but address your ever welcome letter to General Delivery, Kansas City, and it will be forwarded."

"How strange, but it is merely a coincidence," thought Lucille.

"Lucille," called her younger sister, "Arthur just drove by in a cab and did not even look up!"

Lucille rushed to the window, and could only catch a glimpse of the cab, but the figure seated next to a lady looked strangely like Arthur.

"Saw Arthur at the ball game this afternoon," said Lucille's brother, "but didn't have a chance to speak with him."

"Yes, and I caught a glimpse of him at the restaurant late last night, drinking high balls," said her brother's chum "He's some sport."

"It's incomprehensible," confided Lucille to her sister. "I can't endure this strain much longer. To think Arthur would be in town, and not come near me."

"A young man wishes to see you," announced the maid.

"Oh, Arthur," cried Lucille joyfully as she entered the dimly lighted library, giving him one long, fervent kiss. "Such tales as they have been telling about you and I nearly believed them. Have you been in the City? You didn't take a girl to theater, did you? You didn't drink highballs? You didn't forget your Lucille," she finished, giving him a hug "Have you lost your voice? Why don't you answer?"

"I'm not Arthur," stammered the young man "I'm his twin brother. Don't be so embarrassed I rather like your sisterly welcome"

"Forget it, please," said Lucille. "Arthur never told me how much you resembled each other."

"Well, I wish I was Arthur. I promised him I would call on you when in town, but this is the first opportunity I have had."

"To think I doubted Arthur," said Lucille, after her visitor had departed. "But I fancy if any one had seen me kiss and hug an absolute stranger, they would have doubted me, too."

But This Is Different.

"Fan," said George, "you know how I feel toward you. Do you reciprocate?"

"George," Fan said, with a shy glance, "does this mean annexation?"

The Trouble.

Doing Ellis a Favor

Conrad, threading his way across the steamboat dock littered with boxes and trunks and trucks and people, saw Ellis at a distance and headed his way.

Ellis was a man that it paid to cultivate. Conrad was glad they were crossing the lake on the same boat, for there was the chance of a smoke and a chat together.

"Great jam tonight, isn't there?" Conrad remarked after greeting Ellis.

The man with whom Ellis had been talking when Conrad came up laughed at this. "There sure is," he remarked. "I can't get a berth, let alone a stateroom! Guess I'll have to sit up all night!"

Conrad eagerly grasped this chance to do a favor for a friend of Ellis. "You can have a berth in my stateroom," he said, cordially. "I'm alone in it."

Later on Conrad sought his room. Somehow he had lost Ellis after the boat started. He had patiently patrolled the decks without finding him, and was consequently disgruntled. Ellis had not even seemed decently pleased at the kindness to his friend. The stateroom door was locked.

Conrad rapped. There was no answer. He rapped louder. He repeated it.

The man in the next stateroom flung open his door crossly and asked Conrad to stop trying to knock in a side of the boat. He said he had pressing business in port, and if Conrad sunk the vessel and he had to swim in he would be late for his appointment.

Thereupon Conrad kicked the door of his stateroom. It was opened six inches and a sleepy and blinking face peered forth. Con d shoved himself inside.

"Who are you?" demanded the blinking man.

"Here, wake up!" replied Conrad, disgustedly "This is my stateroom, and I'm going to bed Don't you remember that I offered to share with you?"

"Oh!" said the blinking man, comprehendingly, sittin down. Then he rolled over and went to sleep again. Suddenly Conrad gave a howl.

"What have you got in here?" he asked.

The sleepy man sat up and regarded the floor on which Conrad was dancing "Oh," he said, and seemed amused. "They've got out, haven't they? I must have kicked a hole in the paper covering! There's a hundred of those crabs!"

"Then there are just a hundred too many!" Conrad announced as he made a leap for life

"You see," said the other passenger, sociably, "I'm going over to visit a friend, and he's daffy about eating little fresh water crabs. He asked me to bring him some. I put 'em in a basket."

"Well, put 'em back!" Conrad ordered, ferociously.

Crouched on the edge of the berth, he watched the other man try to corral those agile crabs. He chuckled and shooed and coaxed and dived headlong and at last had most of them back in their basket. Then he promptly went to sleep once more

Vastly irritated, Conrad retired He awoke later to find himself being violently shaken by two strong hands.

"Don't you see it? Don't you see it?" shouted a voice. Can't you stop it?"

"Are those crabs loose again?" Conrad cried in horror, making a spring for the electric light switch.

"No, no!" moaned the voice. "That automobile! It's toppling over and they'll all be killed!"

Conrad shook the sleep walker violently. "Where am I?" the man asked when he came to.

"You'll be overboard in the lake if you repeat that performance!" Conrad told him. "I want to get a little sleep."

In an hour a yell once more sent Conrad to his feet. It seemed that a crab which they had missed in the roundup had ascended a blanket to the berth and had fastened upon its owner's ear. No one could reasonably objected to a man's yelling under these circumstances, so Conrad merely detached the crab, threw it out of the window and tried again to sleep, but by that time the boat had reached shore. Sleepy and angry, he started to dress The other man was slumbering as sweetly as a baby. He woke up, though, when Conrad tried to put on his shoes, because the shoes had crabs in them.

As he disembarked Conrad Met Ellis, who was looking fresh, rested and vigorous. Conrad longed to smite him.

"Here," he growled at Ellis. "You let me in for an awful night with that friend of yours! I've had hardly a wink of sleep and have nearly had heart failure besides! What's the matter with him, anyway?"

"I'm sure I don't know," said Ellis, genially. "I never saw him before last night. He had just stopped to ask me for a light when you came along and took him in like a brother!"

MAKING SURE THINGS OF IT

Now That Money Is Scarce, the New York Gamblers Are Taking No Chances.

Real money is becoming criminally scarce with the gambling fraternity here, says the New York Press. The stopping of racing cut off one source of income, and the recent exposures of the crooked games which are being operated, broadly speaking, in every New York gambling house have also lessened the boob crop. A hundred dollar bill, flashed near the corner of Broadway and 43rd street, would probably cause a dangerous stampede. The old-timers are resorting to every possible means to get in the money.

"I got a sucker," said one of the veterans to another the other day. "He used to know me when I was city clerk of Jiggs Crossings, and he has plenty of confidence in me. I'll get him into a three-handed game, work in a cold deck, and we'll take his crop."

The other old-timer objected that both men lacked capital. "We got our 'fronts,' but it will never do to drop them," said he. Without diamonds and good clothes a professional gambler is in a bad way. But the proposer of the sucker harvest was insistent.

"This guy'll tumble for good money," said he. "Now, you'n' me can get four or five hundred dollars on our ice. That's enough for working capital. We'll work along, and when I get a good chance I'll send in the cold hand. I'll deal you four kings and give him four queens, and he'll bet his head off."

"He's to have four queens, hey?" said the other. "And me four kings? All right, I'll go you. But I'm going to go through that deck first and take all the aces out."

NOT OVERCOME BY SORROW

Young Man's Novel Test of Sweetheart's Affection Satisfied Him on One Point.

Alphonse Marron of Paris, a young man of independent means, has found a novel way of testing his fiancee's affection, with the result that the engagement is now broken off.

He called on the girl, Mlle. Suzanne Roix, and after a few minutes' conversation, during which he affected great mental depression, he asked her for a drink of water. As he took the glass from her hand he produced a tiny phial from his pocket, and, emptying the contents into the water, drank it off before she could hinder him. His face then contracted and he sank a helpless mass on the floor He had only time to beg his sweetheart's forgiveness before he expired, as she thought.

Unfortunately for Suzanne, Alphonse was not even unconscious, and he was able to watch the effect on her of his own death. Without the slightest show of sorrow she hastened to the telephone and rang up the police station to say that a suicide had been committed in her apartments, and begging that the body might be removed as soon as possible.

This was too much for Alphonse, who promptly resurrected himself and left the house, after telling his former sweetheart what he thought of her.

By His Own Confession.

When Joseph F. Johnson arrived in Washington as a member of the United States senate from the glorious and gallant State of Alabama, says The Popular Magazine, Senator Burrows, of Michigan, took a great fancy to him. One day in the cloak-room Burrows turned to another senator and said:

"DuPont, stand up I want you to meet Johnston, of Alabama."

The man from Delaware rose to his feet.

"DuPont," said Johnston, taking the proffered hand, "I believe you're the infernal Yankee who shot me at Cedar Creek."

"Well, well!" commented the Delaware senator, somewhat puzzled. "What makes you think so?"

"I see by the two pages of your biography in the Congressional Directory," explained Johnston, "that you commanded practically every regiment in the Union Army during the Civil war. Some infernal Yankee shot me, and I think it was you."

Remarkable Tumble.

The Yankee tourist was in great form His tales of the terrible scenes he had witnessed raised his hearers' hair

Then the quiet little Englishman spoke.

"Saw a man once," he said slowly, "fall off the top windowsill in a building 20 stories high. Never hurt him a bit—just annoyed, that was all."

"Nonsense!" they cried and would have jeered him to scorn.

"Fact!" said the little man. "Up there he was, cleaning the window, and he fell right off."

"That's rot!" exclaimed the man from the states. "Tell me how he did it!"

"Well, you see," drawled the quiet one, "it was rather lucky for him—but he happened to fall inside!"—London Answers.

Her Anxiety.

"Could you wait on me before the others?" asked the woman in the drug store. "I am in a great hurry." The drug clerk complied and filled her prescription immediately. "Thank you so much," she said. "I am afraid that Fido will awake before I return and miss me."

News Notes of Society

The Jefferson Literary society met Friday afternoon in the High School chapel for their regular semi monthly meeting and a very entertaining and successful program was rendered by the students. The debate for the afternoon was resolved: That Roosevelt, rather than Taft should be our next President. The affirmative side won, the team consisting of Eloise McMahan and Allison Leathers. Several extemporaneous talks and other features were also given. The regular monthly election of officers was held and the following named are now in office: President, Frank Bumer; vice-president, Henry Spiegleberg; secretary, Voyle Manown and treasurer, Edward Newhouse.

Harry McFall of Belle Vernon, well known locally and a member of last year's Page A. A. baseball team, was married last week at the Christian parsonage in Belle Vernon by Rev. G. W. Woodbury to Miss Sylvia Bennett. The event was solemnized in the presence of a few friends. The couple will take up their residence in Belle Vernon.

At Latrobe on Friday evening of last week, Mrs. Scott Hamilton of this place was one of the aides in an informal reception and dance given by Mr. and Mrs H. E. Luce of that place. Over 100 guests were in attendance and the home was very beautifully decorated with flowers.

Star Theatre

The Star theatre is being entirely renovated and thoroughly gone over in preparation for a grand opening today evening at which time the theatre will be open to the people of this place and one of the highest priced and most entertaining vaudeville shows ever brought to Monessen will be shown. The theatre is now under the management of Mr. James L. Cowan of Pittsburgh, who has until recently been connected with the Casino theatre in the East End, Mr. Cowan is an experienced theatrical man and promises to give Monessen something entirely new in the way of vaudeville entertainment.

A special orchestra has been engaged to furnish the music from now on and patrons will be assured of a great treat in this line alone. The re-opening bill will be the Omega trio, without doubt one of the best acts on the road today, in a comic sketch entitled "Sweaty's Finish." West and Alquist in a singing, dancing and talking act that is "there," and Mite Mooree in her "Advent Adducent Athlettess." Moving pictures by the Starograph close the bill. Something you don't want to miss. Carnations will be given away free to the ladies and the opening promises to eclipse anything of its kind ever before.

DISTURBS AUDIENCE

If you have any curiosity about the number of people here who have bad coughs just notice the next time you are at church or in any public gathering. You will hear someone coughing almost all the time.

We have said before in this paper that there is an unusual amount of bronchial trouble now, and this is because so many people neglect it.

There is no excuse for letting a cough hang on for months and years. The proof of this fact is that a remedy which cures stubborn cases right along would cure at first if taken then as it should be.

Mrs. E. B. Millard of Middletown, N. Y., says "Having used Vinol for chronic bronchitis which I have had for three or four years I can recommend it highly. It has given me very satisfactory results."

Take Vinol right away, and it will build you up, and stop your cough. It is doing this for thousands of others.

We pay back your money if you are not satisfied with Vinol. Hirsch Drug Co., Monessen Pa.

The Bijou

An exceptionally good bill in the moving picture line is being offered the patrons of the popular Bijou theatre today and three very fine pictures have been selected to start off the week. SHORT COAL TRADE DURING FEBRUARY

The shortest coal trade for a month's period that has been recorded at Lock No. 4 since April 1910, and one of the slackest in years for the river coal business closed last Thursday night at 12 o'clock. Only 6,954,000 bushels of coal were passed through the Lock during February This is just about one-third of the amount that was locked through during February of last year.

The main reason for the falling off has been the cold weather of the past month which caused the suspension of navigation for nine days and the shutting down of the mines for the same reason. The mines in the upper pools are beginning to resume in full force now and it is expected that the trade will reach its normal state in a short time

When Artists Can't Agree.

Lodging complaints against artists is a common diversion of their fellow tenants who lack the artistic temperament, but the most unusual grievance and from her standpoint the most vital has been registered by the janitress of a building largely occupied by struggling painters.

"Let them daub away all they please 'n their own rooms," she said; "that s nobody's business, but for goodness sake let them leave the clothes poles in the backyard alone They paint them fresh every few days because no two of the artists can agree on an appropriate color, and when plain people who don't mind looking at a plain clothes pole hang out their wash the clothes get all smeared with fresh paint."
